The Story of Our Camellia

Celia grew up in McComb, MS, where she was the daughter of one of only two architects in this small southern town. One of his favorite projects was a church built in the early 1960s. McComb, being "The Camellia City of America", Roger designed a concrete mold of a Camellia that is about 12 inches square. It formed a large grid around the church. He even patented the design.

Celia always wanted to use the Camellia as her logo for her own business. In the early 2000s she made that tribute to her father a reality.
